Chack, long-time Emeritus instructor and professor in Jewish Theatre and Holocaust Theatre/Performance at DePaul University's Theatre School, explores seminal plays of the 20th century. From comedies, serious drama, and musicals, we look at how they came out of our culture, had relevant ideas, and predicted shifts in our thinking. Plays include: Animal Crackers, Awake and Sing, Carousel, Cat on a Hot Tin Roof, The Heidi Chronicles, For Colored Girls who Have Considered Suicide when the Rainbow Is Enuf, and Angels in America.

Escape from Nigeria

Join us for the poignant storytelling of award-winning journalist, Maudlyne Ihejirika of the Chicago Sun-Times, as she chronicles the life of her mother, who struggled to protect six small children during the brutal Nigerian-Biafran War (July 1967-January 1970). It is a riveting tale of her family's survival, and a chain of miracles involving an Irish missionary nun and five North Shore Chicago couples who undertook a desperate mission to locate the family and aid their escape to the U.S. as refugees on June 9, 1969. Ihejirika's true, compelling, and heartrending story offers a new context for understanding the current global refugee crisis triggered by the largest number of forcibly displaced people since World War II, and the anti-immigrant, anti-refugee backlash that has taken hold in American political discourse.

Jack Benny

Join Steve Frenzel as he brings on the laughs, courtesy of Jack Benny, one of comedy's most dazzling and groundbreaking funny men. This hilarious and informative presentation features a collection of rib-tickling segments from Mr. Benny's radio, TV shows, and movies, along with classic moments with Mary Livingstone, Rochester, Dennis Day, and Phil Harris.

Monuments Men

The Monuments Men is based on the true story of the greatest treasure hunt in history: to locate and save artistic masterpieces in the midst of WWII. Caught in a race against time, the 355 monuments men risked their lives to protect some of humankind's greatest works of art. Join James Huchthausen, whose presentation includes the role of his uncle Walt Huchthausen, who was appointed a position as a monuments man due to being both an artist and fluent in German. Jim and his family have continued to stay in touch with a Dutch woman whom his uncle met while liberating Holland.

"Jeff and Janis" explore these contributions using primary source material through the unique lens of Jewish identity and cultural influences.

Operation Freedom – The Berlin Airlift (70th Anniversary Lecture)

One of the greatest adventures in American military history, the Berlin airlift of 1948-49 involved 700 planes and 250,000 flights over a period of 14 months. When Soviet troops closed all access routes to West Berlin by land, sea, and rail, the lives of 2.5 million people were threatened provoking the first major international crisis of the Cold War. American General Lucius D. Clay's solution was to build a bold and fantastic bridge across the sky. Join German Historian Anette Isaacs, M.A. for a fascinating discussion of this exciting time in her country's post-war history.

Motown: The Music That Moved the World

In 1960's Detroit, Motown Records produced hits as efficiently as the Ford Motor Company produced automobiles—110 Top Ten hits to be exact. It was the “sound of young America” sung by performers like The Supremes, The Temptations, Marvin Gaye, and Stevie Wonder. Using audio and visual content, Gary Wenstrup, longtime instructor of music history, will trace the amazing musical journey from the power soul of Dancing in the Streets and I Heard It Through the Grapevine to the psychedelic soul of Cloud Nine and What's Going On to the pop soul of The Jackson 5. Timeless music that moved us both then and now.

What emerges is a complex person whose mythmaking encompassed both her art and her life.

It's Good to Be Queen:

An Audience with Queen Victoria

She was an enigmatic and imposing figure. Ellie Carlson, M.S. has selected her as the newest artistic portrayal. Your audience with the Queen will take place in 1876 when she has just been named Empress of India; a country she never actually visited. Nor did she ever visit America. She was probably still smarting from the trouncing the colonial army gave to her grandfather's army. Attending an audience here in the U.S. will require a small suspension of disbelief; and please as always, bring your sense of humor.

The Outside/Inside of Hamilton: the Musical Play

When Lin-Manuel Miranda took on the topic of the founding father Hamilton, who knew it would become the phenomenal musical, winning nearly every Tony Award for which it was nominated? Join David Y. Chuck as he takes a deep look at Hamilton, the man, as he is portrayed in the musical. We will discover themes such as being an outsider and getting on the inside, his role in forming America, the loves of his life, and the ways Miranda created the musical to tell “the story of America then, told by America now.”

The Presidency of Lyndon Johnson

Johnson's presidency is remembered for its contrast between domestic successes and international failures. A forceful leader of the U.S. Senate who was always able to compromise, LBJ changed as president and began to surround himself with people who would not challenge his proposed policies. He stood up for civil rights in the U.S. but turned his back on the population of a small Asian country that wanted the right of self-determination. Gary Midkiff, M.B.A. will examine how LBJ's presidency resembles a Greek tragedy wherein the protagonist commits a terrible crime, unaware of how arrogant and foolish he has been.

Heroes on the Air

Today, the heroes of the comics have become stars of movies, television, and the Broadway stage, but some nine decades ago, radio was the first place to give voice to characters who had only appeared as lines on paper. Join radio historian and Those Were the Days host Steve Darnall for an audio-visual visit with some of the many comic-book and comic-strip heroes (including Superman, Buck Rogers, and Little Orphan Annie) who made their way to radio on their way to taking over the world.

What is World Order?

Join Paul Poast, Ph.D., on the discussion about the “liberal international order” and the “decline of the liberal order”. But what is meant by “international order”? This is often not clear. Additionally, if the “liberal international order” is in decline, for how long did it actually exist? Should we be surprised that it is declining? Should we be concerned about the order that will replace it? All of these questions will be addressed (though perhaps not answered) in this lecture.

Covering Chicago Violence

In a vacant lot in Southside Englewood stood 638 wooden crosses bearing names of Chicago’s 2017 homicide victims. Some 664 people were slain within the city limits in 2017, following 2016’s record homicide rate of 781 slain. The crosses were just one story of the bloodshed, and over the course of 25 years, award-winning Chicago Sun-Times journalist Maudlyne Ihejirika has chronicled the stories of Chicago’s violence as its ebbs and spikes. Join Ihejirika in a discussion on the social determinants of this violence, post-trauma effects on a generation, policing and policy issues for marginalized communities, and more. Attendees will reflect on individual engagement and investment in equitable health for all of our communities.

The Continuing Crisis of Central American Migration

Neither the U.S. efforts to strengthen border security nor the Trump administration’s controversial policy of separating children from parents seeking asylum in the U.S. has addressed the factors causing increasing numbers of Central Americans to cross the U.S.-Mexico border. This talk will look at the latest factors behind this ongoing development and is led by Peter Hudis, Ph.D., who is professor of philosophy and humanities at Oakton.

Reforming America’s Voting Laws

The U.S. has one of the lowest rates of voter turnout in the democratic world. The Constitution, famously silent on the subject of voting rights, has fueled a 200-year-old battle to expand and enfranchise the electorate. But this battle remains unfinished. Join David Faris, Ph.D., to explore how we can pass new laws to enfranchise voters and increase public participation, including automatic voter registration, felon re-enfranchisement, an end to Voter ID laws, and a national election holiday. All of these policies are fully constitutional and could be enacted with simple congressional majorities. Doing so would not only improve the long-term functioning of American democracy but also lead to policy outcomes that more closely reflect the actual desires of the American people.

Activism and Social Media—#MeToo and Black Lives Matter

Our country was conceived out of activism—the organized resistance of colonists toward government actions they deemed harmful. The pioneers who supported women’s suffrage and the right of working people to organize were activists too. So were civil rights marchers and women’s liberation protesters. The 21st century found activism leveraging the Internet and social media to spread messages and organize events faster as well as to accelerate fund raising. Groups as diverse as #MeToo and Black Lives Matter benefitted from these developments. Join Gary Midkiff, M.B.A. to examine how the process of social activism has changed because of social media.
